A while ago, I started to compile a list of Amiga related trademarks that are registered with various trademark offices around the world – simply because I lost track after reading yet another report of some trademark registration expiring somewhere.

Apparently, there are dozens of active trademarks in the United States and Europe – the whole thing turned out to be a lot more work than I anticipated. This list should cover every trademark registered in the United States and Europe – no guarantees though, I still have to double check parts of it. I'll get back to that as soon as I come across some more motivation and spare time ;-)

History of this document

- 1.3 (20120706) Minor update: missed one (dead) trademark in the US: „World of Amiga“, registered by Commodore-Amiga Inc. in 1990, cancelled in 1998.
- 1.2 (20110925) Amiga Inc. lost five US trademarks at once, due to not documenting their use in commerce or requesting a six-month extension of time to file a Statement of Use.
- 1.1 (20110503) Now that the trademark dispute between Cloanto and Amiga Inc. is over, the US marks AMIGA FOREVER and WORKBENCH are officially owned by Cloanto. Also fixed a few typos
- 1.0 (20110426) First public release. The source document (a spreadsheet in OpenDocument format) is available on request.

<sup>5</sup> After registering these trademarks in 2006, Amiga Inc. failed to document their use in commerce or request a six-month extension of time to file a Statement of Use, So all of these marks got classified as „DEAD“ on September 19, 2011.

<sup>6</sup> In 2003, it was discovered that Amiga, Inc. didn't own any registered trademarks regarding software products. William „Bill“ Buck of Genesi/MorphOS fame tried to register a trademark „Amiga“ covering computer software. The attempt was abandoned later on.

<sup>7</sup> „Amiga Development LLC“ is a Gateway subsidiary holding a trademark and patent portfolio, including Amiga related IP when Gateway was the owner of said Amiga IP. The company still exists, but has been renamed in the meantime.
